

---

CONTRIBUTORS

D. T. is a Hong Kong-based researcher on culture and politics in China.

Du Gao was formerly a professor and the editor-in-chief of China Drama Press [Qian Zhongguo Xiju Chubanshe].

Aaron Gray is a researcher at the Uyghur Human Rights Project. He has a degree in International Studies and spent four years studying and teaching in the PRC, including in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region.

Guan Zhonghe, 75, served 23 years in a Reeducation-Through-Labor camp after he was labeled a “Rightist” in 1957. He has written many articles related to democracy and the Anti-Rightist Movement.

Hu Jia is a prominent Chinese environmental and HIV/AIDS activist. He has served as the executive director of the AIZHI Institute of Health Education, and is one of the founders of the AIDS NGO Loving Source.

Liu Xiaobo is an outspoken scholar and writer. As a result of his activism, he is subjected to periodic house arrest and monitoring in Beijing.

Jonathan Mirsky lived in Hong Kong continuously from 1993 to 1997, as East Asia Editor of The Times (London). He is currently based in London.

Ouyang Xiaorong is an Internet essayist and poet, and is a member of Independent Chinese PEN.

Shi Tao is a Chinese journalist, writer, and poet. He is currently serving a 10-year sentence for releasing a document of the Communist Party to an overseas Chinese democracy site.

Tenzin Tsundue is a Tibetan activist, essayist, and poet. He is currently the general secretary of the Friends of Tibet (India).

Tie Liu is the pen name of a veteran activist and writer in Beijing. He formerly worked for the Chengdu Daily.

Uiles is the son of political prisoner Hada, who is currently serving a 15-year sentence. Uiles has been harassed and detained in relation to his and Hada’s activism.

Wang Youqin, a senior lecturer in the department of East Asian Language and Civilization at the University of Chicago, developed a website commemorating victims of the Cultural Revolution. It is available at www.chinese-memorial.org.

Woeser is a well-known Tibetan writer, currently based in Beijing. She lost her job at the Tibetan Cultural Association because of her writings on Tibetan culture and the Dalai Lama.

Yan Jiawei, 70, is a Chengdu native, and originally worked in oil. In 1957, he was labeled a “Rightist” and “counterrevolutionary,” and served 15 years in a Reform-Through-Labor camp. His essays have been published in numerous magazines.

Yang Tianjiao is the 10-year old daughter of political activist Yang Maodong (Guo Feixiong).

Yang Tianshui is the pen name of freelance writer Yang Tongyan. He was sentenced to 12 years’ imprisonment in May 2006 for “subversion of state power,” after posting articles on overseas democracy websites.

TRANSLATORS

Isle Arthur is a law research fellow. He is a commentator on legal affairs and international relations.

Kevin Carrico is a graduate student in anthropology at Cornell University. He can be reached at kevinjoecarrico@yahoo.com.

Paul Frank translates from Chinese, German, and French. He lives in Switzerland and can be reached at paulfrank@post.harvard.edu.

J. Latourelle is a California-based translator and writer who can be reached at j.latourelle@sbcglobal.net.

Annie Knibb is a translator and editor based in Hong Kong.

Paul Mooney is a freelance journalist who has worked in Asia since 1985. Currently a resident of Beijing, he contributes to many major international publications. He can be reached at mooneypj@gmail.com.

Stacy Mosher is a freelance translator based in New York. She can be reached at stacy.mosher@verizon.net.